The senior application year is different.

By August, every essay deadline, every school list decision, and every supplement has direct consequences. There is no time left for theory or four-year roadmaps. You need execution at the highest level, on the hardest deadlines of high school, with a partner who has done it thousands of times. Every senior engagement is scoped personally to your student's timeline and needs. There is no fixed menu to choose from.

SENIOR YEAR · CUSTOM SCOPED

Every senior engagement is built around your student's specific timeline, school list, and needs. After a consultation with Ryan Choi, you receive a written proposal, never a fixed package picked off a menu.

Scoped in conversation

→ Every engagement includes school list refinement, Common App essay support, activities list polish, and recommender management.

+ UCs count as 1 school. All nine UC campuses share one application, so the math is more generous than it looks.

↗ Post-decision support covers deferrals, updates, continued interest letters, and waitlist work, scoped to what the season calls for.

What shapes your proposal.

No two seniors need the same thing. Your proposal reflects the specifics below, worked out together during your consultation.

- How many schools are on the list, and how competitive each one is
- How many essays and supplements need real editorial support
- How much of the season is already behind you
- How often you want to meet, and how directly you want Ryan involved
- Whether an EC Booster or test prep add-on is part of the plan
- Whether interview support is built in or added on

How we count schools. The UC system counts as 1 school. All nine UC campuses share one application. Applying to all 9 UCs plus 9 private universities equals a 10-school list.

What senior year support includes.

The scope below flexes with the engagement: how many schools, how many essays, how much of the season is left. Your written proposal spells out exactly where your student lands on each of these.

FEATURE	WHAT'S INCLUDED
Meeting cadence	Sessions or weekly 1:1s, sized to the school list and how much of the season remains, from a handful of focused sessions up to several meetings a week during fall.
Essay revisions	Edit rounds sized to what the essay needs, from one full edit round up to unlimited edits within the season's workflow.
Turnaround	Target turnaround tightens as deadlines approach, with a priority lane available near the busiest dates.
School strategy	School list refinement for every engagement, extending to full narrative architecture across the list for larger or more competitive lists.
Submission QC	A readiness check before every application goes in.
Parent access	Email-based parent communication, with more direct access available for higher-touch engagements.
Interview support	Available as an add-on, or built into the engagement for families who want it.
Post-decision	Deferrals, updates, continued interest letters, and waitlist/appeals support, scoped to what the season calls for.

EC Booster

A profile that tells your story.

The activities list, awards section, and "why us" supplements all draw from the same source: the student's actual track record. By October, there's no time left to build, only to present. The EC Booster runs June through November, when there's still time to add real work to the profile and frame what already exists.

FOUNDATION, EVERY LEVEL · ASSESS AND ORGANIZE

- Full audit and prioritization of all current activities
- Common App activities list optimization
- Honors and awards list strategy
- Resume rebuild for scholarship use
- LinkedIn cleanup and rewrite
- Narrative coherence across the profile

CHOOSE THE DEPTH THAT FITS THE PROFILE

LEVEL 1

Polish

Strong activities aren't enough on their own. One standout outcome is what makes admissions readers stop scrolling.

- Assess and Organize foundation
- 1 capstone outcome of your choice
- Passion project, research, or competition
- 3 months of mentor support

BEST FIT WHEN

Activities exist already. Just needs one anchor and clean presentation.

LEVEL 2

★ Most Popular

Build

A profile with hobbies but no spike rarely competes. Build creates the depth admissions readers actually weight.

- Assess and Organize foundation
- 1 deep passion project plus 1 supporting outcome
- Outcome can be research or competition
- 4 months of mentor support

BEST FIT WHEN

Activities exist but lack standout work. The college narrative is still firming up.

LEVEL 3

◆ Premium

Transform

Coming into senior year with a thin profile is a real risk. Transform is the rebuild that makes the application competitive.

- Assess and Organize foundation
- 2 passion projects, fully developed
- Research or competition track included
- 5 months of intensive mentor support

BEST FIT WHEN

Profile thin or scattered. Limited time to build standout work before applications open.

Application support and EC work, together.

Most seniors need both. The activities list, the awards section, and the "why us" supplements all draw on the profile, and the profile is still being shaped through the fall. Deciding both during your consultation is how the two get sequenced instead of colliding.

One plan, not two. When application support and an EC Booster run alongside each other, the capstone work feeds the activities list and the supplements while there is still time to shape all three. Your consultation is where the combination gets worked out, and it lands in one written plan rather than two schedules pulling against each other.

→ June through November.

The EC Booster window closes as applications open, so both halves get decided in the same conversation or the earlier one is gone.

+ One track record, three surfaces.

The activities list, the awards section, and the "why us" supplements all draw on the same work. Build it once and it pays into all three.

↗ One calendar.

Essay deadlines and mentor milestones sequenced against each other, rather than competing for the same weeks of the fall.

WHAT THE TWO HALVES COVER

- Application support: school list refinement, Common App essay support, activities list polish, recommender management
- EC Booster: full activity audit, awards and honors strategy, resume rebuild, LinkedIn rewrite, narrative coherence

- Both: submission QC before every application goes in, and post-decision work once results land

Real results from dedicated students.

Eight families, eight different angles into the application. The common thread is the work done together (narrative, framing, specificity, timing) and the colleges that said yes.

STORY → SUCCESS

"I had the numbers but not the story. Ryan helped me connect debate to real-world impact in two Saturday workshops, so it didn't sound canned. I was admitted to Harvard."

ANNIE S. ·

LISTS → PROJECTS

"MIT felt out of reach until we reframed my maker projects. We shipped two finished builds with photos and write-ups instead of a long list. That changed everything."

ALEX K. · MIT

RESEARCH → NARRATIVE

"Ryan pushed me to turn research notes into a narrative about curiosity and ownership: what I asked, changed, and learned. That angle made Princeton make sense for me."

NEHA P. ·
PRINCETON

IMPACTFUL PROJECTS

"Activity framing, recommender briefs with impact bullets, and a tight 'why business' built from one small project made Wharton feel natural."

DANIEL H. ·
WHARTON, UPENN

CUT THE FLUFF

"We cut the essay fluff and built crisp stories I could defend in interviews. Two mock interviews later, the arc held. I chose Stanford."

MARCUS P. ·
STANFORD

FINALLY ME

"My app finally sounded like me, not a brochure. We swapped vague claims for concrete examples and cleaner activity framing. I'm at Duke with strong aid."

GRACE L. · DUKE

CLARITY, SPECIFICITY

"We focused on specificity: professors, labs, and the city, tied to my work. That clarity made the supplements click and helped me into Columbia."

JASON K. ·
COLUMBIA

TIMELINE → DEADLINE

"Ryan's scholarship timeline kept me ahead of every deadline. We trimmed the UC PIQs to what mattered and checked fit against programs. I landed UCLA with a program I love."

ALAN W. · UCLA

Three things worth knowing.

→ Competitions.

We pick the ones that fit your student, manage the timelines, mentor the execution, and make sure the work is submitted.

+ Internship and research.

A search program: resume, LinkedIn, and outreach guidance. We do not place students, and we do not promise placement.

↗ Testing.

Every engagement runs a testing plan inside the regular meetings: score targets, test dates, practice milestones, whether or not you add test prep.

What comes next.

The senior calendar sets the pace. Starting the Common App essay before the August rush is the single decision that buys the most room later.

01

READ THIS OVER

Take it to the family. Mark what fits your student's fall and what does not.

02

TELL US WHAT FITS

Reply to the email and tell us what you would like built around what we discussed.

03

RYAN BUILDS THE OPTIONS

He puts them together himself, around your student's list and timeline. Nothing off a menu.

04

BEGIN ONBOARDING

Once the plan is settled, we open your student's file and begin onboarding promptly.

Pricing and custom package options come after our next conversation.
